It is safe to say that research the world over is showing us that lawyers are 'unhappy' in very large numbers. Here in Australia, current research suggests 1 in 3 of us will experience depression at some stage in our careers. That statistic is both overwhelming and very concerning when we consider the future of our profession.

My open and active pursuit of happiness in law came at a time when I was 'unhappy', but thankfully I was able to work through it. I have found many articles on why lawyers are 'unhappy' but few tell me how we can be happy, while enjoying the profession we all love. I am now helping other lawyers in their own pursuit of happiness in law, and life.

This pursuit has enabled me to develop four key resources which enable lawyers to access not only my learning, but to hear from a range of experts across our field about how they have overcome their own 'unhappiness', and live a happy life while building a career they love.

The Course

Become a happier lawyer while growing your business and brand across an 8 week course which will provide you with the tools to take on life's challenges while building a career you love.

Partnership Opportunities

I want my profession to be full of great lawyers those that are actively leaving a positive mark on the lives of those around them. And I know that for great lawyers to stay in this profession they will need to find 'happiness'- a sense of purpose, content and belonging.

I am looking to partner with a select group of value aligned brands to assist in opening a positive dialogue about a career in law. By being a part of this partnership you will have the opportunity to share your message with my audience of lawyers nationwide while being a part of opening this dialogue and hopefully helping more and more great lawyers find their own happiness in life.
